

Graduate Student Assistantship Program

20-hour
work week including combined practical and academic learning experiences

Grad Assistant 20-hour work week includes:

- 18 hours per week fulfilling job responsibilities
- 2 hours per week in academic course work/class preparation in Disability Studies. A one-credit seminar in Disability Studies each semester is required.

Individually designed work assignments available; each associated with Institute grant-funded project.

Opportunities include hands-on learning in:

- Policy
- Research and evaluation
- Project coordination
- Program development

Qualifications

Applicants must be enrolled and maintain good standing in a full-time matriculated graduate degree program at Temple.

Graduate Student Assistantship Program recruits students pursuing terminal degrees from a variety of academic departments and with a broad range of skills / experiences.

Graduate students at the Institute on Disabilities are hired as Research Assistants (RA), Externs, or a combination in accordance with the TUGSA agreement, Policies on Graduate Student Support issued by Temple University's Office of the Provost and Graduate School, and position responsibilities as outlined in each job description. Contracts are written for one academic year, often with the possibility of renewal. Students receive a stipend and tuition scholarship at the level corresponding to the RA or Extern appointment, school of academic enrollment, length of commitment, and availability of funding resources.

More information and application online at

disabilities.temple.edu/programs/assistantships