Pennsylvania’s Initiative on Assistive Technology provides hands-on assistive technology (AT) device demonstrations — “guided explorations” — of a single device or a group of devices.

Who can request a device demonstration?

- Pennsylvanians with disabilities and their families, as well as employers, educators, therapists and others who want to learn about AT

A demonstration will help you make a decision about AT by:

- Increasing your understanding of the types of devices that can help with a need (i.e. using a telephone or reading mail)
- Improving your knowledge of a specific device’s features compared against other, similar devices
- Enhancing your understanding of how the device(s) can help at work, in school, at home and in the neighborhood

How do I request a demonstration?

- Requests may be made by telephone or email
- A mutually convenient time and place for the demonstration will be set
- Demonstrations may be at a demonstration center, or at a regional Assistive Technology Resource Center (ATRC)
